Council decides on 'dry' Halloween

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The City Council voted Tuesday to ban public consumption of alcohol during Carbondale's annual Halloween celebration.

With a 4-1 vote, the council adopted a resolution banning the Halloween Fair Days ordinance that allows public consumption of alcohol.

"This is the first step," Mayor Neil Dillard said. "A lot of other things have to be put into place by staff prior to Halloween 1989."

The council members agreed that although alcohol would not be allowed at the party, alternatives to the celebration should be considered.

Councilman John Yow, who has said in the past that he will not support any ordinance allowing open consumption of alcohol, told the council that Carbondale should feel a "sense of shame and loss of community pride and reputation over the event."

He added, "I am not aware of any real good purpose the Halloween celebration has served in the past or will serve in the future."

While the council said it wanted to give University students a decision about the street party before leaving for summer vacation, alternatives or additional changes to the celebration will not be made until summer.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn, casting the only vote against the resolution, said if alternatives are presented to the celebration, he will consider changing his approval of the celebration.

Shawnee: SIU-C's added attraction

By Richard Nunez

The various fishing and hunting opportunities in the Shawnee National Forest attract people from all over the state and, in some instances, gives SIU-C an advantage over other state universities when attracting prospective students. Because the University is located on the northern outskirts of the Shawnee National Forest, some students have chosen to attend SIU-C because of the abundant fishing and hunting opportunities available.

Bill Stolz, senior in biochemistry, has been fishing in the Shawnee for six years and called it "the best place in the Midwest to catch bass."

"Hunting and fishing weren't the main reasons I chose to attend school here," Stolz said. "But I know people who chose SIU because of the great hunting and fishing down here."

Stolz said Firehouse Pond near Murphysboro would be a good introductory fishing spot for an inexperienced fisher.

Firehouse Pond has a 21-inch minimum length limit on large and smallmouth bass, which average about 6 to 7 pounds, Stolz said.

Bass under the 21-inch limit, which have to be thrown back into the pond, can range from 5 to 6 pounds, Stolz said.

"For an average fish, that's a trophy mount for a lot of people," he said. "If they catch a couple of fish like that, they are going to want to fish some more."

Stolz said he has fished such lakes as Cedar Lake near Pomona, Lake Egypt near Goreville, Kinkaid Lake near Murphysboro and Little Grassy Lake east of Carbondale, where he caught more than 25" bluegill during the weekend of the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta.

"Cedar Lake is probably the most scenic lake in the area," Stolz said. "If someone is more interested in just being outdoors instead of catching a lot of fish, then I would recom-

Cardboard regatta circuit is canceled

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

The University's Alumni Association will no longer sponsor the Great Cardboard Boat Regatta Circuit, Edward Buerger, executive director of the University's Alumni Association, said.

The regatta circuit is a series of cardboard boat races held at sites around the United States that follow copyrighted rules owned by the association.

The original regatta was the idea of Richard Archer, professor of art and design, as a class project.

The decision to discontinue the circuit was based on budgetary concerns, Buerger said.

"We could not afford to sponsor a regatta season," he said.

Buerger said his main duty to the association was to promote the association and attract new members. Sending staff to the various sites, including one in Orlando, Fla., and one in Hartford, Conn., would cost too much money and the number of alumni contacted would be too small to justify continuation of the regatta circuit.

But according to a newsletter dated Feb. 8, which was sent out to the event producers around the country by the association, gave every indication that the regatta circuit was to be held.

"The Executive Committee of the Board of Directors

Two organizers of races on the cardboard boat regatta circuit said they were not aware of the SIU Alumni Association's decision to not offer contracts for the 1989 season.

Last year, 13 events were included in the regatta circuit. The events are held at various sites around the United States.

The Great Cardboard Boat Regatta and its rules, trademark and service mark are copyrighted with the association.

In the past, contracts, along with a $500 licensing fee, have been offered to interested parties requiring them to follow the copyrighted rules of the regatta.

The regatta was started at SIU-C by Richard Archer, professor of art and design, as a class project in 1973.

Mary Jo Ballschmied, an event producer in Sheboygan, Wis., said she had not been offered a contract needed to have the regatta.

"The event has been planned and has been advertised," Ballschmied said. "We don't know what to do," she

Students may be ill from food at Lentz

By Miguel Alba

Housing administrators say they will investigate reports that several students became ill after eating cheeseburgers for dinner Friday at Lentz cafeteria.

As of Tuesday, six health and accident reports involving possible food poisoning at Lentz dining hall, have been filed with administrative officials.

Lentz Hall cafeteria officials estimate an average of 800 students eat meals regularly during weekdays while the numbers drop off slightly during the weekend.

Edward Jones, director of University housing, said more details about the cases are needed before any conclusion is made.

"I don't want rumors like that floating around," Jones said. "Whatever it is we want to correct it. We have nothing to hide."

Mike Lange, a freshman in business, was one of the students who filed a complaint. He said he felt sick shortly after eating dinner Friday at Lentz Hall, adding that his condition worsened later that night.

Lange said he experienced vomiting and other complications the following day. He said he suspected food poisoning after discussing the matter with friends who also displayed similar symptoms.

"It's all we had to eat that night," he said. "We all ate at Lentz together."

"When I found out Sunday that we were all sick, I knew it was a more serious problem," Lange said.

Mitterrand urges revision by Arafat in PLO's charter

PARIS (UPI) — President Francois Mitterrand, during an unprecedented official meeting, urged PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat to revise the PLO Charter to reflect the organization's recent moves toward peace in the region, the presidential palace said. "It was a very successful and fruitful meeting that brings forward the peace process in the Middle East," Arafat said.

Eush asks for rapprochement of Gen. Noriega

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring "the day of the dictator is over," President Bush urged worldwide condemnation Tuesday of Panamanian Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega for resorting to "massive election fraud in order to remain in power." Wary of the climate set for elections Sunday, Bush asked European allies and fledgling Latin American democracies to exert pressure on Noriega, whom the United States has sought without success to force from power.

Atlantis launch looking good for Thursday

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The countdown resumed Tuesday for the delayed flight of the shuttle Atlantis, its crew on track for a second launch try Thursday, weather permitting, to fire a high-priority science probe to Venus. Liftoff is set for 12:48 p.m. CDT Thursday, six days after a short circuit in a fuel pump last Friday grounded the ship just 31 seconds before the planned ignition of its solid-fuel boosters.

Israel remembers victims of Nazi Holocaust

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Pedestrians stopped in their tracks, soldiers stood at attention and traffic halted for two minutes Tuesday as sirens wailed across Israel in memory of the 6 million Jews killed during the Nazi Holocaust. For the first time since Israel established a Holocaust memorial day in 1953, Israelis remembered those killed by reciting as many of their names as possible in ceremonies across the country Monday evening and Tuesday.

Wright: Budget imperfect but best possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Jim Wright pronounced the proposed trillion-dollar-plus budget for next year no "heroic effort" and "imperfect," but insisted Tuesday it was the best possible under the stark limitations on available money. Wright, D-Texas, gave his assessment of the $1.1 trillion budget as the House and the Senate prepared to work on separate, somewhat different resolutions to carry out an agreement reached by President Bush and congressional leaders.

Battles continue in Beirut; death toll at 279

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Artillery battles engulfed much of Beirut Tuesday in violation of an Arab League cease-fire, but the commander of Lebanon's Christian forces said he was prepared to give diplomacy a chance if it led to withdrawal of Syrian troops from his war-torn nation. Police and security sources said three people were killed and 10 others were wounded in the bombardment, raising the death toll of the latest round of factional fighting which broke out March 13, to 279 dead and more than 1,220 wounded.

Students in China deliver democracy terms

BELJING (UPI) — Student leaders pedaled bicycles Tuesday to the door of Communist Party headquarters in Beijing and delivered an ultimatum giving officials 24 hours to agree to direct talks or face mass protests Thursday. The demand came as nearly 10,000 protesters in Shanghai staged a sit-in at city Communist Party headquarters, ending a four-day lull in off-campus demonstrations and launching a third week of pro-democracy protests. "Give us democracy and freedom," read banners carried by the students.

Pentagon: Iowa's gun turret is repairable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A preliminary examination of the battleship USS Iowa's gun turret where 47 sailors were killed in a powerful explosion has shown that the damage is not severe enough to bar repair of the turret, the Pentagon said Tuesday. However, Defense Department spokesman Dan Howard said the decision has not been made yet whether gun turret No. 2 should be repaired or sealed in its damaged condition and left unused.

Art auction will benefit sick child

University News Service

A benefit art auction will help pay medical expenses for 3-year-old Fedra Ekres, who is undergoing treatment for leukemia at St. Louis Children's Hospital.

The arts and antiques auction will take place at 7 p.m. May 10 in the Student Center Ballrooms and is sponsored by graduate students and faculty in the School of Art and Design.

The preschooler is the daughter of Tamara Ekres, a graduate student in art and design. The Ekres family came to America from Yugoslavia three years ago.

"The financial burden, not to mention the emotional one, is simply beyond the resources of a graduate student and newcomers to our country," Michael O. Onken, associate professor of art and design and the auction's coordinator, said.

The school's faculty and students and many community residents have donated items for the auction, but Onken said he hopes to collect more antiques and collectibles before the event takes place.

Items may be brought to the School of Art and Design's Graduate Office, Allen Building, after May 5.

For details, contact Onken at 453-7760 or B.J. Carr at 453-7762.

Fed donates land, buildings to SIU-C

Coal research center officially University's

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The federal government has donated 24.7 acres of land and two buildings that make up the Cartersville coal research center to the University, Richard G. Austin, U.S. general services administrator, said.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said the University had applied to the government months ago to obtain the coal research center.

"I'm glad to hear that the transfer has finally come through," Dougherty said. "The center can be a benefit to the University's research in coal."

Since the center is a donation, it will have no cost to the University, Dougherty said.

Austin said SIU-C was selected to receive the center because the coal mining industry is extremely important to the economy of Southern Illinois.

Two buildings, a three-story, 25,700 square-foot structure with laboratory and classrooms, and a 17,654 square-foot laboratory building of steel and block construction, are included in the donation.

John Yopp, dean of the Graduate School, said the center will receive $210,000 from the U.S. Department of Energy to fix some rain damage sustained by the buildings.

Funding for the repairs comes from a $1.5 million grant given to the University by the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources. The rest of the grant money will go toward further research at the center.

The University has been using the coal research center since 1983 when a cooperative agreement was signed with the Department of Energy, former owner of the center, to allow the University to do the research.

The property was originally acquired by the War Department in 1937 for construction of an artillery plant, Austin said. It was then transferred to the Department of the Interior and was part of a 138 acre tract conveyed to SIU-C in 1965 for educational use.

The Department of Energy received the property in 1978 when it agreed to allow the University to further its energy research on coal and coal mining techniques, Austin said.

Until recently, the property had been considered government surplus and had been tied up by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which put the property on a list of possible sites for homeless shelters.

The property had been considered suitable for shelter purposes, but it was never formally applied for any homeless coalitions.

Graduate students' art work to be exhibited

University News Service

Four master of fine arts thesis exhibits will feature student paintings, films, photography and glasswork when the exhibit opens Thursday at the University Museum.

A free public reception will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday at the museum to honor art graduate students Rick Beck, Arthur Blake Pearce and Alisa Snyder and film and photography graduate student John Pai.

Pai's thesis includes a documentary on his mother, two short experimental pieces and a feature film on jazz saxophonist Charlie Parker. The films will be screened at 6 p.m. Thursday at the museum.

Beck will display glasswork, including large vessels, huge molded slabs formed into giant blocks and blown glass forms combined with hammered iron. Galleries in St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati are showing Beck's work.

Pearce will display paintings, drawings and prints harking to childhood objects such as toys, boxes and chairs. Snyder will exhibit figurative oil paintings, drawings and prints.

The University Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sundays. Admission is free. The museum is in the north wing of Fanner Hall.

Springfest could be a mini-Halloween

SEPARATING SPRINGFEST and the Cardboard Boat Regatta may have been a good idea after all, although the 60 people arrested at Springfest may not agree.

In past years, the Springfest and Boat Regatta crowds have mixed and spread out with their alcohol from Old Main Mall to Campus Lake, allowing for traffic flow and breathing space. But not this year.

About 13,000 people were estimated to make up the Springfest crowd — all tightly packed into Old Main Mall. That may have been the problem.

A large crowd in a small area and limited entertainment do not make for happy parties. And the droves of police officers made underage drinking expensive for those who tried to get away with it.

ALTHOUGH MOST OF the arrests were for underage drinking, the situation had the potential to be a mini-Halloween with can throwing and fights.

While the University is trying to snuff out Halloween, it is on the path to turning Springfest into a similar riot.

The Boat Regatta, on the other hand presented no problems, no arrests and smaller crowds than usual, probably because of the ban on alcohol.

Many people dubbed this year's regatta the best ever. The crowd was calmer and the boats more interesting. What more could one ask for?

Well, many are still asking for their alcohol back. But judging from the success of this year's regatta, they won't get it.

AS FOR SPRINGFEST, the alcohol seems to be the main problem. Perhaps more entertainment would help control the drunken crowd, but the area would still be tightly packed.

If the Springfest area were extended as far as Pulliam Hall, the crowd would be dispersed. The hillside in front of Pulliam would be ideal for the main band, leaving more room in Old Main Mall for booths and other bands and alcohol could be allowed in both areas.

Better control of Springfest should begin now, so it can be an enjoyable event like the Boat Regatta and not turn into another Halloween.

Opinions from elsewhere

San Francisco Examiner

As a matter of urgency, Japan needs to put the Recruit Co. scandal behind it soon and initiate reforms that would prevent a recurrence.

Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita's decision to resign, and take responsibility for the mess in order to "regain people's confidence in politics," opens the way for the ruling Liberal Democratic Party to upgrade its standards.

The stability of Japanese democracy would be served by a cleanup of the leadership, the institution of tighter rules governing political contributions and favors and new grounds of elections gaining the public's endorsement of the process.

The crisis in Tokyo is not expected to affect the basics of U.S.-Japanese relations, founded on mutual interests in world security and economics.

Policy-making may languish in such key areas as Japan's glaring role in international finance and relations between industrial and developing countries. A complication for Washington is how to press this country's case for a fairer balance of trade with Japan (instead of a $55 billion deficit) without seeming to take advantage of the political sarray in Tokyo.

Takeshita's exit follows admissions of having received more than $1 million in contributions from Recruit.

The company also sold stock to officials at low prices that provided the buyers with big profits. All of the major Liberal Democratic factions have been touched by the scandal.

Speculation about a successor focuses on an ailing former foreign minister and once caretaker prime minister, Masayoshi Ito, 75, to lead the government on an interim basis. Ito's main credential is his reputation as an elder statesman of high principle.

The other pressing issue for the party to consider is that of proposed reform. Takeshita says he did nothing illegal. But he is the third postwar prime minister to quit under a cloud of corruption charges.

The smell of scandal pervades the ruling circle. Three cabinet ministers have been forced to resign and the public is unhappy enough to reduce the government to a 3.9 percent approval rating in one poll. This is not a sign of healthy democracy. Severe reforms may be needed to police contributions by seekers of government favor, and to circumscribe insider stock trading such as that used to enrich bureaucrats.

Postwar Japan is a democratic success story. Now the country's political achievement is in need of rigorous safeguarding.

Only a squirrel could be so blind

IT WAS A cool overcast morning as I strolled across campus on my way to a class. Taking a detour, I made my way through Old Main Hall.

You know, the mall surveyed by the gowned statue of former University President Delyte Morris. Morris stands there solemnly gazing. It was 7 a.m. and there was no one around but the squirrels to make me feel self-conscious. So I laid my books on the ground and I too gazed at the scenery in Old Main Hall.

I noticed what I hadn't noticed before: That mall is beautiful.

"What are you doing?"

I looked down. One of the squirrels had addressed me. "I'm looking at these buildings," I said, "You're really lucky to have such nice scenery to look at."

THE SQUIRREL shrugged. "I don't pay any attention to the scenery. I'm too busy gathering acorns."

I told the squirrel to look at Altgeld Hall.

"Look how the ornamental turrets are arranged in levels and they disappear below the line of sight. It looks like some kind of nouveau medieval castle."

"Yeah, I see what you mean," the squirrel said.

I walked between the Allyn Building and Parkinson Laboratory and pointed at Shryock Auditorium. "Look at that window. It's so ... so ... majestic. It's almost as tall as the building. And the red dome on top — you can see the dome from down there can't you?" The rodent said that it could. "That dome is an artifact. It's something that you don't expect to find in a Southern Illinois town. Yet there it is."

"AND LOOK at Faner," I said. Faner Hall stretched for 300 yards behind us.

"It's like a felled skyscraper lying on its side in the middle of campus. Granted, it's not all that nice looking but it certainly is different."

The Squirrel was unimpressed.

"OK, what about those trees next to Anthony Hall?" I figured trees would be right up the squirrel's alley.

"Never noticed, none of them have acorns."

Undaunted, I told the squirrel why it should pay attention to the trees. I pointed out one of the pine trees. Its needles hung low and slowly swayed in the wind like a sad old giant weeping from the burden of its wisdom.

CLOSER TO US stood two flowering trees that were separated from the others. They were bright and gay, one with pink blossoms and the other with white blossoms. Behind them, the tall dark pinelines lining Anthony Hall looked on in silent reproach.

Then the squirrel turned to leave, apparently bored with my sermon. "You appreciate the mall that you live in now, don't you," I said.

"Oh sure, but I must be on my way, many acorns to collect you know."

The squirrel had finally exasperated my patience. "Is that all you ever think about," I said, "collecting acorns?"

"Do you think acorn collecting is easy," the squirrel answered hotly. "Collecting acorns is a full-time job I'll have you know. After finding the nuts I must carry them to and fro, then bury them so I'll be able to find them later."

"I HAVEN'T got time for the scenery," the squirrel waved his front paws to indicate all of the Old Main Mall. After it said this, the squirrel left me and went back to the business of its life.

Perhaps the squirrel is right, I thought. I looked at my watch. It was now 7:30 and I still hadn't reviewed for the test I was to take at 8. That was after all, the reason I had come to campus so early in the first place.

I gathered up my acorns and hurried to class, paying no heed to the scenery as I went.

BAS struggle will resume with fall semester

With the closing of yet another school year, the gains that students and others have made for the Black American Studies program will hopefully continue. I hope that the departure of Dr. Luke Tripp from this campus will not yield the advancements that have been made so far. Although some student leaders may not return in the fall, I believe that they made a strong impact to encourage someone else to take their place.

Over the summer, some will reflect upon the protests and rallies that were organized for the BAS program. Some will forget the attempts made to strengthen and keep the program on this campus. And yet, some will take action by organizing and planning an agenda for when they return.

Thus in the fall there will be some who are still reminiscing on events that happened in 1989, some who will start with a clean slate and some who will be prepared to fight for the continuing struggle, building upon the accomplishments made in the past.

In order for any further gains to be made, I hope that the majority of those returning in the fall will use this year as a stepping stone for the ultimate goal. Remember not to forget what we have done so far, but do not linger in the past. Remember the efforts and mistakes made and use them as another rung added onto the tall ladder we must climb. — Audra M. Barrett, Senior, advertising.

Law school loose with money

We would like to tell minority students who are considering the study of law to definitely think about studying at SIU. As a minority student (black, hispanic, Asian-American or Indian) the SIU School of Law has a silver platter with money on it for you when you are accepted.

Almost all minority students at the law school now get fellowships if they are U.S. citizens. The fellowships consist of tuition waivers for three years and a $200 a month stipend. This is not known to all SIU law students, so we would like to inform them of a program that has been kept quiet, or at least not well publicized.

The School of Law gives fellowships to minority law students who aren't even Illinois residents. This doesn't seem an appropriate use of Illinois taxpayers' money.

The School of Law catalog says something about these minority fellowships. Under the section "Financial Aid" a portion reads: "A limited number of fellowships available to minority students with demonstrated financial need." Notice the words "demonstrated financial need."

The law school's director of admissions was asked if students who get fellowships must fill out any financial reports. His response was: "No comment." That answer strongly indicates that he could have shortened his response to just "No" and conveyed the same meaning. We hope that there will be more careful checks to eliminate needless payments to students who really have not shown a financial need.

The interim dean has said that the catalog wording will be changed, but did not say what the exact change will be. The words "demonstrated financial need" will probably be deleted. However, those are the most important words, and the ones that the law school officials should stress when determining if a minority student should be given a fellowship.

Law school officials claim the present fellowship program is needed to diversify the law school student body and that few minority students would come to the SIU School of Law without it. But this seems like a policy of "buying minority students." Other efforts could be made by the law school administration to encourage minority students to study here.

The law school could give special presentations to black fraternities to inform them about the school. Handouts extolling the school of law could be sent to fraternities and other organizations. The SIU Black Law Students Association and the SIU Hispanic Law Students Association could help the law school in recruitment efforts.

We are not against helping minorities go to law school. But we believe a more limited program to help "truly" needy students is appropriate. The Law School's catalog states: "The School of Law has limited resources for financial aid." We believe that to be true.

We invite the law school and others to respond to this letter. Many Daily Egyptian readers would like to know how many minority law students there are, and how many of them receive fellowships.

Isn't it time for "equality" in the U.S.? We certainly think so. — Ron Runkle and David Sparacio, second year law students.

Hart's football defense is full of holes

With all the upheaval about the possible elimination of football, it seems necessary to bring to light some inconsistencies in the athletics department.

First and foremost is the actual hiring of Mr. Hart as the Athletic Director. After a unanimous vote by the Strategic Planning Committee not to hire Mr. Hart, he was given the position.

I say given because he has yet to show he has the qualifications needed to be an athletics director.

Since the beginning of his reign nine months ago, this miraculous fundraiser has successfully increased the athletics budget for some sports by eliminating women's field hockey and men's gymnastics.

It seems that Mr. Hart attempted to gain favorable relations with the Strategic Planning Committee in December by following through with their proposal to cut the two sports.

What is ironic is that football is now on the chopping block. Why hasn't Jim followed the next suggestion in the planning committee report of cutting men's and women's tennis and golf?

He has publicly acknowledged his bias for the sport of football over other sports.

What is even more ironic is that in December the athletics department was only concerned with "the money before their eyes" and not the feelings of the athletes.

Money was a crucial issue in deciding if the other two sports were to be cut. Suddenly only four months later, finances are not an issue anymore.

"There are people involved here. You could make a case out of numbers, but this is not just a numbers game. It involves people," Hart said in the April 24 DE.

Why is it that when Jim's sport is heading for the axe, the players' feelings suddenly become the main issue?

Looking only at statistics, is the athletics department were actually in dire straits as they claimed to be in December, then football should have been the first to go.

But how can the Athletics Director eliminate a sport that he himself participated in here at SIU?

Resident: Football leisure worth football cash

So Jerome Handler and other SIU faculty members object to the existence of football? So what?

Since all sports at SIU are basically supported by student athletics fees paid for mainly by undergraduate students, what Jerome thinks about the subject is almost inconsequential.

His view is only interesting in its odd mixture of intellectual elitism and in loco parentis views on how college students should spend their leisure time.

Football at the I-AA level, as in high school, is basically a matter of entertainment. It exists for the students to enjoy, like concerts at the Arena.

In general, students use sports events to reduce tensions and boredom (too many Anthro courses?). Sports help form a bond between students and their university. Fans identify themselves as being SIU Salukis.

As far as making money, most of the several heavy metal concerts presented at the Arena this year were partially subsidized by the University. Get rid of football? You might as well say get rid of concerts.

Why not get rid of all leisure time activity? I guess it depends on what sort of "head banging" one wants. Jerome hasn't commented on rock concerts, but he certainly doesn't enjoy "helmet banging."

I contend that the SIU football experience is worth the money paid by those who experience it. Football directly entertains around 50,000 fans per year, but probably 100,000 have fun tailgating before the games.

If one divided 50,000 into the cost, one gets an actual cost of $0.10 per fan. Too much for a good time? Then, divide the cost by 100,000 tailgaters.

Anyway, I'd suggest that Jerome make more time studying football as a ritual that 100,000 people have a need for instead of trying to play "god" with said people by eliminating it. — Marvin L. Courson, Carbonade.

completed its review of a number of association activities, including the regatta program. Now we can make headway on the 1989 season," the letter stated.

"Soon we'll be offering you a 'Licensing and Consulting Agreement' for the 1989 regatta. Because 'The Manual' is an essential part of the 'Agreement,' it's appropriate for you to see 'The Manual' as you prepare to sign the 'Agreement.' As soon as the manuals are printed, we'll send you these documents," the newsletter stated.

Terry Mathias, a volunteer regatta coordinator and graduate of the University, said he received a letter from Buerger dated March 13, indicating the regatta circuit would be discontinued.

The letter was addressed to both Mathias and Archer and began "As we discussed by telephone Friday, March 3, I, in consultation with the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of the SIU Alumni Association, have decided to discontinue sponsorship of 'The Great Cardboard Boat Regatta.' The Alumni Association will not permit use of the regatta manual as long as the Association holds the regatta concept at SIU's annual campus regatta on April 29, 1989."

Included in the letter was a paragraph asking Mathias for a "list of all parties that seriously inquired or are awaiting a contract to promote and sponsor a cardboard boat regatta in their local community. I will convey our regrets as soon as I have received the information from you."

Mathias said he complied with the request and forwarded the information.

However, two event producers contacted by the Daily Egyptian had not been contacted on whether they would be given contracts. Based on the Feb. 8 newsletter and earlier commitments, the event producers had planned their respective events and in one case had advertised the event.

Buerger said he was unaware event producers were still under the assumption contracts would be sent.

In the March 13 letter additional reasons were given by the association for discontinuing the circuit, including:

- possibility of association liability if a regatta participant or spectator is injured or dies during activity;

- Alumni Association budget reallocated to more traditional programs and services;

- limited potential for recovery of expenses; even less potential for revenue producing activity;

- and assignment of alumni staff to regatta was impractical.

Mathias said that in most cases the individual event producers have insurance through a park district or other organization associated with the event that would cover such a liability of an injured person.

Buerger said that the risk of being sued, even with such insurance, is to great a risk for the association to take.

Citing a hypothetical situation, Buerger said that it is impractical for the association to send a member of its staff to an event held in Orlando, Fla., costing $500 when that money would be better spent on association meetings and local activities designed to increase membership.

Mathias said the association does not need to send staff to any of the events.

According to a sample contract issued to event producers, "The Event Producer further agrees to pay, on the day of the event, an additional fee of $250 for association's designated representative - Commodore; plus, within 30 days following the event, reimbursement for any and all traveling and lodging expenses of said designated representative."

Archer said he only knew of one time in which association staff attended a regatta outside the University and that was at Lake St. Louis where the staff sold regatta T-shirts and did not stay over night.

Buerger, Mathias and Archer said the main reason the regatta has lost money in recent years is because of a 1987 lawsuit between the Alumni Association and the Crystal Lake Yacht Club, over the copyright of the regatta.

According to news stories, the lawsuit was settled out of court and the terms of the settlement were not released.

Mathias said that if the debt from the suit is excluded, the circuit does not lose money from its events.

Buerger said that the fact remains, the debt from the suit exists and the regatta has shown deficits over the last three years.

Buerger estimated the regatta circuit lost about $30,000 over the last three years.

Archer said the majority of that amount can be attributed to the suit and not the cost of administering circuit races.

The rights for the regatta circuit, excluding the campus race, are for sale but Buerger said he is not advertising the event. The association is asking $15,000 for the rights.

Buerger said he will protect the campus regatta as well as the regatta held in Edwardsville should the circuit be sold.

Archer said the Alumni Association has no control over what happens to either of those two regattas.

"I am not advertising (the sale of the circuit) because I'm not in the business of running a profit-making business," Buerger said.

Archer said Buerger approached him about buying the rights to the regatta but he was financially unable to do so.

It's not just the finances but also the principle of the matter that has kept him from buying the rights, Archer said.

"Why should I buy something I gave to the Alumni Association," Archer said.

said. Ballschmieder felt the association was committed to the regatta circuit for the 1989 season.

"We will look like fools if we don't go through with this year's regatta," she said.

The Sheboygan regatta is scheduled for July 4.

Linda Peterson, producer of the Bloomington regatta, became very emotional when speaking of the possibility the contract would not be offered.

"I need some answers," Peterson said. "I don't want to give this thing up."

The benefit to the families in the area is too great and too much time and effort have been put into planning to quit now, she said.

Peterson said the weekend of Sept. 17 has been turned into a fair weekend with a car show and parade planned around the regatta.

"Give me the information I need," she said. "We want our cardboard boat regatta. Our word is good; now we want the association's."

"We need to take what we have that isn't so good and change it," Tuxhorn said.

Tuxhorn said that he voted against the proposal because he was not prepared to vote.

Councilman John Mills said he favors ending the Fair Days ordinance but some kind of entertainment must be provided for the students.

"We will have Halloween '89, '90, '91," Mills said. "We have to provide some kind of entertainment."

Councilman Richard Morris said the city has no alternative but to stop the party.

"It was an incipient riot."

—John Guyon

Carbondale's Halloween street party began in the 1970s as a spontaneous gathering of students and grew to the present organized event.

The party was initially contained to the area on South Illinois Avenue from College Street to Walnut Street. As the party grew, the city closed Illinois south to Grand Avenue.

The council adopted the Halloween Fair Days ordinance in the early 1980s, according to a report by Deputy City Manager Jeff Doherty, to allow open consumption of alcohol.

Estimates for the 1988 party put the total of partygoers at 25,000.

City Manager Steven Hoffer told the council that he supports the elimination of the party.

"If people get the message that only some changes have been made for Halloween, they will continue to come," he said.

After the 1983 celebration, University President John C. Guyon called for the end of the party.

"It was an incipient riot," Guyon said. "There is no possible way to construe that evening as anything other than an unmitigated disaster."

The city administrative Halloween committee, Chamber of Commerce, Halloween Core Committee and Carbondale Interchurch Council have voiced support for the end of Halloween.

Jeff Johnson, a sophomore in business, said he was one of those students who became ill after eating a cheeseburger at Lentz Hall.

Johnson said at least one other student became sick on Sunday when Bailey Hall residents had a cookout using hamburger meat obtained from Lentz Hall.

Johnson said it is difficult to say how many people have been affected by this.

Before receiving the health and safety reports, Margaret Nesbitt, food production unit manager at Lentz cafeteria, said she considered the matter a student prank.

However, she said she took the matter seriously when the reports were brought to her attention.

Nesbitt said she will read the reports and try to determine what the students involved ate that made them sick.

Nesbitt said she will try to find out if Lentz Hall is responsible for the matter and, if so, what can be done to prevent it from happening again.

Nesbitt said she is always receptive to student input and encourages students to call on her personally if there are any problems or suggestions they may have.

Paul Taylor, a first year law student, who said he ate a cheeseburger at Lentz on Friday, was admitted to Memorial Hospital at Carbondale Saturday after experiencing severe vomiting and stomach cramps.

Taylor said the doctor first diagnosed him as having a gastric infection, but later speculated the symptoms also could be caused by food poisoning, stating not much difference exists in the symptoms.

Taylor was released Sunday and given medicine to relieve stomach cramps.

David Gallianetti, a senior in journalism, said he went to the Health Service Monday after experiencing severe vomiting Saturday and Sunday.

Gallianetti said he feels the cheeseburger he ate at Lentz made him ill.

He said a doctor at the Health Service diagnosed his problem as a possible gastric infection or nerves. Gallianetti received medication to relieve stomach discomfort.

Taylor and Gallianetti are not among the six people who have reported the matter to the administration.

Jim Bloom, director of Jackson County Health Department, said food poisoning takes two basic forms, food infection and food intoxication.

"Food infection is where the food takes on bacteria and when the food is ingested, the bacteria invades the body in large numbers. It gets into the intestines and causes diarrhea," he said.

The salmonella bacteria is the number one culprit involved in food poisoning in the United States, Bloom said.

"Food intoxication is where the food becomes infested with staph bacteria, which produce the toxin that causes food poisoning," he said, adding that botulism, a form of such food poisoning, is the most severe, causing paralysis and even death.

Bloom said vomiting and diarrhea can occur depending on the severity of the food poisoning.

"Once a person has (the food poisoning), you can't just give them a vaccination and expect it to go away in a few hours. It just doesn't happen that way," he said.

Bloom said the duration of the symptoms depends upon the severity of the food poisoning. He said symptoms will manifest themselves differently depending on individual body chemistry.

Free heavy metal concert to be held

By Kathleen DeBo
Staff Writer

Mistreated and Conquest will perform a free heavy metal concert 4 to 7 Wednesday night in the Free Forum Area. Free roasted pork also will be provided in limited quantities. No alcohol will be allowed.

Tom Corry, center programming chair of the Student Programming Council, said he anticipates an audience of about 500.

"Heavy metal is about the most popular form of music right now. We haven't had any heavy metal programs all year," he said.

He said the council chose heavy metal bands to serve the diverse tastes of the University population.

"We try to fulfill the needs of the University in general, with the widest possible variety of entertainment. I had personally heard complaints we don't have enough heavy metal," he said.

The concert also will provide a study break.

"We thought it would be a great idea for a show—a free party for finals week. That's why it's called the 'final' meltdown," Corry said.

Conquest is scheduled to perform from about 4 to 5 p.m. and Mistreated from about 5:30 to 7 p.m., Corry said.

Mistreated, a five-member band from Los Angeles, is negotiating for record deals with several companies, Corry said. They have produced more than 30 original songs, some soon to be released by Guns N' Roses.

"They normally charge more, but we got them dirt cheap because they had heard of SIU-C. They are from Southern California and wanted to know what Southern Illinois is like," Corry said.

He said Conquest is the opening act for many bands

Featured above is the five-member band Mistreated from Los Angeles. Mistreated along with Conquest, another band from Southern California, will be performing a free heavy metal concert in the Free Forum area on Wednesday from 4 to 7.

who perform in St. Louis on tours.

The free pig is provided by the Student Center, he said.

"We're going to be up at 7 a.m. cooking it. I can hardly wait," he joked.

The concert will be in the Student Center Ballrooms if it rains.

The concert is a variation of The Hump Day Cafe, which provides free entertainment on Wednesday afternoons, Corry said.

Corry said he worked with several booking agents to find the bands.

"I was constantly barraged with promo tapes," he said.

Disabled author to speak

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Jean Little, an author of children's books, will present a free talk at 1:30 Wednesday in Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Little, and her seeing eye dog, Zephyr, will give a presentation on creative writing, storytelling and being blind.

Little is a Canadian author who specializes in writing books about the handicapped for junior high school children.

Joan Laskaris, a librarian who provides services to the blind and physically handicapped in the Shawnee Library System in Cartersville, said Little began writing because she was unhappy with the way handicapped people were depicted in books.

Little usually delivers workshops to creative writing classes, Laskaris said, but Wednesday's talk will cover a broad range of topics. Little is touring Illinois under a grant from the Illinois State Library.

In addition to speaking on writing, Little will recount stories about her early days in Taiwan as the daughter of missionary parents, her school years as a visually handicapped person and about her life now as a widely-acclaimed author.

Wild, roaming bear leaves memories

ANOKA, Minn. (UPI) — When word got out that a big black bear was ambulating around 10-year-old Steven Schara's back yard in suburban Minneapolis-St. Paul, Betty Kuehn trapped a memory for her grandson that no camera could capture.

The young, burly bruin was spotted in Schara's yard Monday, within a mile of the Wilson School, and, as any self-respecting grandma might do, Kuehn yanked her grandson out of the schoolhouse so he could see the wild wonder for himself.

"I think he'll be happy for the rest of his life," Kuehn said of the youngster. "All I knew was that if I was a kid, that's where I'd want to be. The bear was very peaceful, lumbering about, and everyone got a chance to see him."

About 50 people saw the black bear snooping around the secluded residential areas along the border of Anoka and Andover.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials were summoned and they tranquilized the bear with a dart and kept it overnight at the Carlos Avery Wildlife Management Area, a swampy wilderness just north of the metropolitan area.

Wildlife officials released it Tuesday in north central Minnesota where bears are common.

"It looked raring to go this morning," Kevin Lines, wildlife supervisor at Carlos Avery, said Tuesday before the bear was returned to the more natural setting.

"It was a relatively young male and male bears do more wandering than the opposite sex," Lines said.

Lines said ursine wanderlust is not unusual in the area.

Proposal to raise gas tax expected

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Greg Baise intends to unveil a plan this week to immediately raise the gasoline tax by 6 cents per gallon to help pay for a new road program, sources said Tuesday.

The program includes a $1 billion, five-year highway bonding program, but the total package would raise about $2 billion, a substantial portion of which would go to mass transit, the sources said.

Baise planned a briefing for reporters late Tuesday and was expected to unveil the proposal publicly on Wednesday.

Under the plan, local governments would receive a higher percentage of the increased motor fuel tax that they receive now.

The current gasoline tax is 13 cents per gallon, but that would rise to 19 cents per gallon under the plan.

The fact that Baise has come up with a plan comes as no surprise. Long before Gov. James R. Thompson unveiled his fiscal 1990 budget Baise was bemoaning the lack of sufficient revenues for the state's highways, bridges and mass transit systems.

Evan Thompson himself called his budget on the transportation side "woefully inadequate."

The state's $4 billion budget for fiscal 1990, which begins July 1, concentrates on keeping the state's existing roads and public transportation systems in working order.

Efforts to raise the gasoline tax in the recent past have been rejected by lawmakers. In fact, opposition was so strong that no vote ever was taken on any proposal.

In 1987, Thompson unveiled a plan to raise the gasoline tax by 9.5 cents per gallon over a five-year period and raise license plate fees, currently at $48 to $17.

Death penalty upheld

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan Tuesday defended Illinois' death penalty statute as protecting the rights of accused killers far more than the killers protected the rights of their victims.

Hartigan said he would ask the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to expedite the state's appeal of Monday's ruling by U.S. District Judge Harold Baker at Danville.

Baker declared the Illinois death penalty unconstitutional by ruling it violates a defendant's right to a fair trial. Baker's ruling came in the case of Charles Slay, convicted by a Vermilion County jury of the fatal 1980 St. Valentine's Day stabbings of Cheryl Block, 32, and her roommate, Ann Waters, 29, both of Danville.

mend Cedar Lake."

Scenic rock bluffs along the water's edge reach heights of about 100 feet. Don Garver, district fish biologist for the Illinois Department of Conservation, said swallows nest in the bluffs and numerous wild turkey and deer can be seen on the shorelines.

"Cedar Lake is one of the most scenic lakes in the state," Garver said, adding that the lake has been "undeveloped" and allowed to remain in its pristine condition.

Cedar Lake has a 15-inch minimum limit on large and smallmouth bass, a 17-inch minimum limit on striped, white and hybrid striped bass and a 14-inch minimum limit on walleye and sauger.

Kinkaid Lake near Murphysboro has an 18-inch minimum limit on large and smallmouth bass and a 14-inch minimum limit on walleye and sauger.

Little Grass Lake and Devil's Kitchen Lake east of Carbondale stock various types of fish, including bass, catfish and pan fish.

Little Grass Lake has a limit of six channel catfish per day. Both Little Grass and Devil's Kitchen lakes have a 12- to 15-inch slot length limit on large and smallmouth bass. The slot length limit means bass less than 12 inches and greater than 15 inches can be taken from the lakes.

Garver said numerous ponds and basins, managed by wildlife officials, are stocked with fish. Fishing is encouraged in these areas.

"To get to some of these areas, you might have to walk a mile or two, but it's worth the effort," Garver said.

The Shawnee also provides numerous hunting opportunities. The more popular hunting game include deer, wild turkey, squirrel and waterfowl.

Oak Wood Bottoms west of Alto Pass is considered by many forestry officials to be one of the best waterfowl hunting sites in the Midwest.

A series of levees and floodgates provide more than 3,000 acres of reservoir at Oak Wood Bottoms for thousands of migrating and wintering waterfowl, including wood ducks, black ducks and mallards.

John Hind, part-owner of the Wildlife Refuge, 100 N. Glenview, said he has been hunting at Oak Wood Bottoms for about 15 years.

Hind said the reservoir is managed to keep the pin oak alive to provide the area with plenty of acorns, the main staple of waterfowl.

"The Bottoms is as good as anywhere I've been," Hind said. "I've been to Missouri and other areas and (Oak Wood Bottoms) is a pretty nice project."

The reservoir is open to hunting during times prescribed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Illinois Department of Conservation.

White-tail deer are found throughout the Shawnee, and large areas are open to public hunting in the Shawnee, except for developed recreational sites.

The archery hunting season for deer begins Oct. 1 and ends Dec. 31. Hunting with shotgun or muzzle-loading rifle is allowed six days out of the year; Nov. 18 to 20 and Dec. 9 to 11.

The limit is one deer daily per archery or firearm permit. Permits, by county only, are available from the Illinois Department of Conservation.

Wild turkeys have made a successful comeback since their near extinction in the early 1900's. The Illinois Department of Conservation has been restocking the turkeys since the 1950s and by 1970, wild turkey hunting was permitted in Illinois for the first time in 67 years.

The archery hunting season for wild turkey begins Oct. 1 and ends Dec. 31. The spring shotgun season for wild turkey, lasting about 12 days, is held in late April and early May.

The limit is one turkey per permit. Permits must be obtained from the Illinois Department of Conservation in February.

Squirrel hunting season begins Aug. 1 and ends Dec. 31. The limit is five squirrels per day and the possession limit is 10.

The Shawnee also allows hunting for various other game, including coyote, quail, fox, rabbit and raccoon.

Thursday: Clear-cutting in the Shawnee National Forest.

Pirates' manager's colt to miss Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Former major league manager Chuck Tanner said Tuesday he is withdrawing Majesty's Imp from the Kentucky Derby because of a bone chip in the colt's left knee.

The move leaves a probable starting field of 16 3-year-olds for Saturday's 115th Run for the Roses.

"It's just a big disappointment," Tanner said by telephone from his home in New Castle, Pa. "We got as close as you can get without getting there."

Trainer Sturges Ducoing informed Tanner of the problem Tuesday morning, and Tanner canceled the 10 hotel rooms he had reserved for the Derby.

Tanner has been unemployed since being fired as the Atlanta Braves' manager last season. He managed the Pirates for nine years and took them to the 1979 World Series title.

Dan Galbreath, owner of Darby Dan breeding farm and racing stable and former owner of the Pirates, gave Tanner a breeding to his stud Little Current as a "sort of" bonus. Tanner bred Little Current to the mare D.J.'s Imp, a matchup that produced a now 4-year-old filly, Quick Currency.

Tanner, who owned and raced several claimers with former pitcher Jim Kaat in the mid-1970s, was so delighted with the foal, he paid to breed D.J.'s Imp back to another highly regarded Darby Dan stallion, His Majesty. That breeding produced Majesty's Imp.

A number of people, including former Pirates player and coach Bob Skinner and Houston Astros pitcher Rick Rhoden, own tiny shares in the colt, who runs under the formal ownership name of Batarasan Stable.

The bay colt came to the Derby with three victories and purse earnings of $66,227. Majesty's Imp won the Lecomte Handicap at the Louisiana Fairgrounds last Feb. 4, then ran third in a division of the split Risen Star Stakes and second to the highly regarded Dispersal, who also is injured, in the Louisiana Derby.

Majesty's Imp, however, raced a disappointing fifth, beaten 3 1/4 lengths, in the April 25 Lexington Stakes at Keeneland Race Course, the colt's final Derby prep.

"Who knows," Tanner said. "Maybe the thing was starting to bother him then."

Majesty's Imp would have gone to post in the Derby as a rank outsider, but that fact didn't bother Tanner, known as the most optimistic man in baseball.

"Did you pick Michigan to win the NCAAs?" Tanner had asked.

Beginner's guide to the art of horse racing jargon

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — None of the thoroughbreds in Saturday's Kentucky Derby is a horse. And none will gallop. At least their owners and trainers hope not.

No, I have not been helping myself to veterinary supplies of Lasix or butazolidin. The above is an introduction to track talk, the often befuddling argot of thoroughbred racing.

In the Sport of Kings, for example, a "horse" is a male equine over age 5 with the full equipment necessary for stud duty, and a "gallop" is a gait just a tad bit faster than a "jog." A "jog," you will be happy to know, is just about the same thing for a thoroughbred as it is for a human.

A thoroughbred who has been "cut" does not have an open, bleeding wound on his body, though he may have one on his psyche. A "cut" equine can never be a "horse," because he has been castrated to make him less ornery and unruly.

Males under age 5 are colts — unless they have been "cut" to the status of "gelding" or have been unfortunate enough to have been born with one undescended testicle. (Discussion and evaluation of a male equine's sexual status is commonplace in racing, since some of the biggest money to be made in the industry is in the breeding shed.)

Trainer Jolley met owners through clerk

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — A retired New York Racing Association mutual clerk was responsible for hooking up New York trainer LeRoy Jolley with Arkansas breeders-owners Kalarikkal and Devi Jayaraman — an association that has produced Jolley's 12th Kentucky Derby starter, Irish Actor.

Ray Hilbert, Jolley's longtime golf partner, moved to Hot Springs, Ark., following his retirement as a mutual clerk. He has a heart ailment and became a patient of Kalarikkal, a cardiologist. Devi is a pathologist.

"Ray noticed the office was full of horse pictures, so he and the doctor got to talking," Jolley said Monday. "The doctor mentioned that he had a nice 2-year-old he'd like to race in New York."

After a few phone calls, Jolley took over the training of Irish Actor, just in time to saddle the Bold Forbes colt for the Champagne Stakes at Belmont Park.

Irish Actor was third in the Champagne, beaten 19 1/2 lengths by Derby favorite Easy Goer. Irish Actor then won the Young America Stakes by 1 1/2 lengths. After that start, the colt underwent surgery to correct a stress fracture in his left front shin.

Irish Actor resumed racing in late March and was second to Awe Inspiring, Easy Goer's highly regarded stablemate, in the Flamingo Stakes. The colt then ran fourth in the Arkansas Derby at Oaklawn Park, the Jayaraman's home track.

"He's a nice horse. He's never run a bad race (his worst finishes are two fourths)," Jolley said. "He's not a superstar like Easy Goer."

Softball team set for final non-conference game

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

The Saluki softball team travels to Cape Girardeau, Mo., to take on Southeast Missouri in a doubleheader at 3 p.m.

The doubleheader against the Indians is the last non-conference game for the Salukis this season.

"I'm only concerned about getting through this weekend," coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

This weekend the Salukis will go up against Gateway Conference contenders Indiana State (28-20) and Illinois State (21-24).

Recent Gateway standings put Illinois State in second place and Indiana State in third place. The Salukis rest in fourth at 21-16 overall.

Southeast Missouri (33-19) finished second in its conference tournament and plays its last regular season games against SIU-C today.

The Indians are hitting .276 as a team, while their opponents are averaging only .215.

Murphysboro native Lisa Foster is leading SEMO in hitting with a .387 average. John A. Logan Junior College transfer Sue Stiglo follows Foster in average with .336.

Top for the Indians on the mound is freshman standout Missy Sanges, who has a record of 18-7 with a 1.34 earned run average.

Freshman Cheryl Vernorsky is still leading the Salukis in hitting with a .364 average while junior second baseman Shelly Gibbs is close behind.

Bulls take home court for series with Cavaliers

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls can use their newly acquired home-court advantage to seal a first-round upset over the Cleveland Cavaliers without ever leaving the Windy City.

After losing all six meetings to the Cavaliers during the season, the Bulls picked an opportune time to break the drought by winning Game 1 of their playoff series at Richfield, Ohio, Friday. The Cavaliers recovered in time to earn a split with a victory in Game 2 Sunday, and the now best-of-three series shifts to Chicago Stadium for Games 3 and 4, starting Wednesday night.

"I think the Cavs realize that they're up against a team that is not going to go out easily, if they're going to go out at all," said Bulls coach Doug Collins, whose team was picked by many to lose quietly in three.

The Cavaliers also may realize they are up against an even more determined Michael Jordan, who was upset at his performance in Game 2, which consisted of 30 points and 10 assists but 7 turnovers.

"The guys put their effort there, and I guess maybe I was trying a little bit too hard," Jordan said. "I really didn't play the type of game I was trying to and yet we still had an opportunity to win the ballgame.

"But we did what we intended to do. We came here, played hard both games and stole one. Now we're going back home to play before our Stadium crowd. And we are in position to win the series at home if we don't become complacent."

In the first two playoff games against Cleveland last year, Jordan scored 50 and 55 points. He went on to break six team records and three league marks in the first round alone, and the Bulls went on to eliminate the Cavaliers in five games. Jordan scored an NBA record 63 points against Boston in a 1986 playoff game.

The Cavaliers were without their star point guard Mark Price in Game 1, then regrouped when Price returned to the lineup on Sunday. Price's leadership freed up teammate Ron Harper, who scored a game-high 31 points and kept Jordan in check on the other end of the court.

"We're going to have to play better in Chicago than we did (at home) if we hope to get one and maybe two," said Price, who labbed himself 80 percent healed from a pulled groin. "We've won in Chicago this year. We know we can win there.

Post-Louganis era ready for start with world diving meet in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The first major international diving competition since Greg Louganis retired begins Wednesday with the Chinese expected to dominate a rebuilding U.S. team.

The sixth FINA World Diving Cup features 150 divers from 20 nations competing on 10-meter platform, 3-meter springboard and, for the first time, 1-meter springboard. The five-day event is the first major meet for men and women on the road to the 1992 Olympics.

For the first time in 16 years, that road will not be traveled by Louganis, a 47-time national champion who won the platform and springboard titles at the 1984 and 1988 Olympics. Louganis left the sport to concentrate on an acting career after his triumphs in Seoul.

"We'll have our first chance to see the post-Louganis era and what affect that will have on our team and our sport," said

Ron O'Brien, who coached Louganis. "We'll see if people got to love the sport or were just following Greg. I hope people will focus on the new stars and not the Louganis era and help us build this team."

Other U.S. divers are anxious for the chance to emerge from the shadow of Louganis.

"U.S. diving has a lot of depth below Greg that people haven't seen. Now is our time to be seen," said Kent Ferguson.

talking about individuals, coaching staffs and offenses."

Handler said that if the athletics department does not answer the questions then it will be avoiding the major question.

"If it's just straight PR without discussing the issues that are raised, it is not going to add any substance to the debate."

The focus of the campaign will be the 75-year-old football program and the 1989 season. Hart said the promotional campaign will not necessarily cost the athletics department more money than it has allotted in the budget.

"It's not necessarily added expenses," Hart said. "The campaign is more word-of-mouth."

Rison signs 5-year deal for $3 million

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Michigan State wide receiver Andre Rison signed a 5-year, $3 million contract Tuesday with the Indianapolis Colts, eight days after being selected as the 22nd choice in the NFL draft.

The contract, which includes a $1 million signing bonus, is the fastest ever agreed upon by the Colts with a first-round selection. Most of the team's top draft choices in recent years have been holdouts into training camp, with 1987 pick Cornelius Bennett remaining unsigned for six months until being traded.

Jim Irsay, the Colts' general manager, said the team met Rison's terms quickly in exchange for a long-term deal.

"The length of the contract was one of the big things in getting it done early," Irsay said. "Most people picked last year around where Andre was had a three-year deal. We thought this was a unique situation and it gave us a chance to resolve things early."

Rison, 5-foot-10 and 185 pounds, caught 146 passes for 2,992 yards and 20 touchdowns in four years at Michigan State. He caught a Gator Bowl-record 9 passes for 252 yards and 3 touchdowns in his final college game. Rison was expected to be among the draft's top choice but was still available when the Colts picked him in what Coach Ron Meyer called the "steal of the draft."

Rison's negotiators, Charles Parker and Steve Feldman, completed the deal about 2 a.m. Tuesday. Colts owner Robert Irsay gave his approval later in the morning and Rison was awakened by a call telling him the deal was complete.

"I wasn't surprised it happened this quick," Rison said. "When I came in after the draft, there was a great deal of friendship. I felt comfortable. I felt there would be no tug-of-war situation as far as the contract. It was like a brother to brother deal."

Rison said he plans to bank most of his money, except for the amount needed to buy a new car, probably a Mercedes-Benz.

"That's something I've always dreamed of," he said.

Parker said fears of difficult talks with owner Irsay were unfounded.

"Dealing with the old man was great, really," he said. "I heard a lot of rumors."

from $1 to $2 and SIU-C students will now have to pay $1 to see their Salukis as opposed to free admission.

Bruce McCutcheon, assistant athletics director, said the installation of admission for baseball games this season has had some effect on attendance.

"We don't have the usual fan drop down to see what is going on," McCutcheon said.

McCutcheon said the raise in ticket prices is an effort to move baseball admission prices in line with those of other sports.

The Saluki Athletic Pass, which will remain available for $20, will also include baseball. The pass now entitles the bearer to free admission to men's and women's basketball, football and volleyball games.

Other increases on the proposal include raising the price of chair seats at men's basketball games from $7 to $8 and the season ticket price of chair seats from $95 to $100.

Hart told the IAAC a search committee will be formed soon for the hiring of a strength and fitness coach.

Hart said by cutting athletics administrative budgets, the department would be able to fund the salary for such a position. He said the salary will require about $20,000. Hart said a job description had been drawn up, but he had not given any thought as to members for the search committee.

Bob Brewer, an assistant bursar, was elected chairman of the IAAC for the 1989-90 year. Brewer will replace George Black as IAAC chair.

Golfers use game pressures to enhance their course play

By David Gallianetti
Staff Writer

For SIU-C golfers Lisa Meritt and Anne Childress, the pressure of being No. 1 and 2 in the Saluki program couldn't have come at a better time.

Meritt, a junior, and Childress, a freshman, have been holding the two top spots for the women's golf team much of the spring season. Coach Diane Daugherty is hoping the two can hold the same spots at this weekend's Gateway Conference finals.

"Just after the first few tournaments this spring I was under pressure to perform well," Childress said. "It's not a bad pressure. It is good to know I can contribute and am needed by the team. They count on me like Lisa."

Meritt, who has risen from a No. 5 and 6 shooter last year, to No. 1 this year, said her desire to win has put her where she is now.

"You can call it what you want, but I call it competition," Meritt said. "That is a part of the game I have difficulty with sometimes, because I come from a competitive background and I do not want to lose to anyone."

Being in the top spot for Daugherty is not only a goal fulfillment, Meritt said, but a chance to flex muscles with the better players on the Salukis' schedule.

"I would rather tee up with the big hitters," Meritt said. "You learn more from playing the No. 1 players from Minnesota and Indiana because you're playing better competition."

Childress said her team's expectations of her to perform well during each outing has improved her game.

"Once you start to shoot good numbers, that makes it much easier every time out to play well," said Childress, who is second on the team with an 82.6 average. "It is nice to be a freshman and be able to contribute this much."

"I did not expect to play this well in the spring. I thought I would shoot five or six and try to keep traveling and contribute a couple times. I hit balls and lifted all winter and opened up my distance."

Meritt sports an 81.3 average going into the Gateway finals. Daugherty said the junior may be headed for an individual league crown.

"This could highlight her successful season or put a damper on it," Daugherty said.

Before leaving for the summer, Daugherty said Meritt stopped in and worked out a summer program for herself, and often spent 15 to 18 hours on the golf course a day.

"Her success is due to her hard work and determination," Daugherty said. "She is the hardest worker on the team."

For Childress, Daugherty said the league finals is a new experience, and even a sub-par performance probably wouldn't overshadow the freshman's strong spring.

"She hasn't experienced that (the conference tournament)," Daugherty said. "I know it means a lot to her, but she hasn't experienced the air of conference. If she would not play well, it would not put a damper on her whole year."

Daugherty said the biggest similarity between Childress and Meritt is their overall game strength.

"Neither one has one aspect of their game which stands out as a strength," Daugherty said. "Neither one is an outstanding putter or good driver or wood player. Both have good, solid overall games."

A junior and freshman sitting on top of the pack is nothing new for Daugherty. As a sophomore, Julie Schumaker was the No. 1 golfer.

"We always have a pretty good balance between upper and lower classmen," Daugherty said.

the runner."

Of course, Wrona adds, the reason for the extra time is that a batted ball reaches third base so fast that the only chance to make a play often depends on possessing quick reflexes.

"At third you can't be flat-footed, and you basically have to react," Wrona says. "Actually, I felt more comfortable this summer than right now. One season is not enough to get used to the position."

Wrona, a righthanded throwing junior, got his first chance at third base while playing along with teammate Doug Shields for Yarmouth-Dennis in the summer Cape Cod League.

The strategic responsibilities of a third baseman are fewer than those of a middle infielder. However, the crucial timing it takes to successfully field a bunted ball makes up for that, Wrona says.

"I've had to work on my technique to keep momentum, even though right before the ball gets to the bat, you have to come to a dead stop."

Wrona says that players skillful at hiding their intention to bunt until the last moment present the biggest challenge.

According to Wrona, Wichita's Joey Wilson, who had a sacrifice bunt and made three other attempts, was such a batter. "I had a tough time reading his bat because he didn't drop it until very late."

Wrona has performed consistently at the plate. As the team's only true switch-hitter, he has a .310 average. From the No. 2 spot in the order, he has scored 23 runs, hit safely 52 times, and accounted for 24 RBIs.

"I like hitting up in the order because that's where the action is," Wrona says.

IAAC wants to study Saluki athletics

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee Tuesday recommended the 1989-90 IAAC study the role football and other sports play in the mission of the University.

George Black, current IAAC president, suggested the committee study the issue because it is the only campus-wide committee that concerns itself primarily with athletics.

"I think we're the most legitimate group on campus to examine an issue like this," Black, professor of library sciences said. "We represent every constituency on campus."

President John C. Guyon

said the IAAC could be one of the leading groups in dealing with the football issue.

"That might be a comment prodding us to do something," Black said.

Black said he feels next year's committee will take the recommendation to heart and form a study group.

"It is not a white wash of football," Black said. "A lot here are not athletically prone and don't have a vested interest. Most of the people on the IAAC have some interest in athletics, but it is not a requirement for membership."

Athletics director Jim Hart said he feels the committee should look at the issue.

"I think it is good the committee will look at it," Hart said. "With perfect hindsight, I think it should have done something originally. The presentation (by anthropology professor Jerome Handler advocating the elimination of football) just caught everybody off guard."

Handler asked the IAAC to form a committee to study the possible elimination of football when he presented his original argument to the committee Feb. 21.

"I think it's a very good idea," Handler said. "They should study it critically. I think the more University bodies that systematically look at the issue, we'll be better off in the long run."

Hart said that the committee's decision will not make new football coach Bob Smith happy.

"The fact that the committee has decided to recommend a study will hurt him personally," Hart said. "He wants it put to bed as quickly as possible."

The athletics department has developed a football campaign to help promote the sport under scrutiny. The theme, "Football awareness - Saluki style," is designed to educate the fans about Saluki football.

"We had a meeting over at the Foundation to make something positive of all this," Hart said. "We do (have a promotion) every summer anyway. We'll just give it a little more than lip service this year."

"I'm going on the assumption that we're going to have football here. Until the president tells me we're not going to have it, we'll have it."

Hart will be writing a 16-part series during the four-month promotion, discussing some of the issues presented and other sides of football. The series will be released for publication in area mediums.

"(Men's sports information director) Fred (Huff) and I are going to put our heads together," Hart said. "It's going to be informational. It will not be solely reflecting on the present issues. We'll be

Racers hit Salukis for 2nd defeat

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Murray State's baseball team embarrassed SIU-C, again. After handing down an 18-2 decision last week, the Racers rolled over the Salukis 8-0 before an Abe Martin Field crowd Tuesday.

The Salukis, who fell to 23-28 and are one loss shy of the school record 22 defeats set in 1985, play host to Austin Peay in a 1:30 p.m. doubleheader today.

"I'm open to suggestions," said a visible perplexed Coach Ritchy Jones. "So I asked (the players) if they came to play. They're honest guys, and they told me they didn't. How can you not come to play when you are under .500? That I don't understand."

Perhaps the only encouraging result from the humiliating loss was that a handful of players remained after the game, and on their own took batting practice and infield practice.

However, the damage had already been done. The Racers got a run on two Saluki errors in the first.

"Our first inning of defense was similar to a circus act," Jones said. "We didn't get the job done."

Offensively, the Salukis were just as impotent, garnering only four hits to the Racers' 13.

Centerfielder Doug Shields pulls his bat back on a bunt attempt during the Salukis' 8-0 loss to Murray State Tuesday. Racers' catcher Phil Wessel awaits the ball while umpire Tom Dunn is prepared to call the pitch. The Salukis play Austin Peay today in their last home game.

"SIU's just not swinging the bats like they normally do," said long-time Racers' coach Johnny Reagan. "There's nobody we have more respect for, and there's no question we caught them at a down time."

The Salukis have lost four of their last five games.

Ryan McWilliams (1-3) took the loss, despite holding Murray State to two runs through six innings. But in the seventh, Dan McNamara blasted a McWilliams high curve ball over the right field fence for a three-run homer.

"Ryan did a good job, he just hung that one pitch," Jones said. "It was a commendable performance."

"SIU's just not swinging the bats like they normally do. There is no question we caught them at a bad time."

Murray State added three more runs in the ninth off pitcher Mark Hokanson.

The Racers, who had not played since the Saluki game last Thursday, put their record at 21-12.

Rick G.ogan, who was scheduled to throw only three innings, was the winning pitcher. Grogan (8-2) allowed only one hit. Kirk Rueter and Eric Greaser each pitched another three innings.

This was the third time this season the Salukis have been shutout. The others were a 6-0 loss to Miami on March 10 and a 7-0 loss to Missouri on April 25.

Besides McNamara, two other Racer hitters had three hits. They were Phil Wessel and Ben Garland. Gary Keeper, Dan Alfeldt and Dale Dunn each had a double.

Third base good place for Wrona

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Nearly a full season has elapsed since Dave Wrona made the move as an all-conference shortstop to third base.

Wrona says he is still learning to handle the hot corner. But Saluki baseball fans who've seen his glove in action would testify that he is already an adept student at the position.

Fifty games into the season, Wrona is third on the team in fielding assists (116) and has a .925 fielding percentage.

"Some of the kinks have to be worked out," says Wrona, who also has 13 errors this season, "but I think I might like it more in the long run. If I have a (professional) future it's definitely the spot I'll have to play."

With a patent tenacious streak common to all good third basemen, Wrona has accepted the mindset that nothing hit his way will get by. In the weekend series against Wichita State, Wrona repeatedly knocked down several scorches.

"I had to be on my toes. They had a lot of dead-pull hitters," says the 20-year-old Wrona.

"When I was at short you have the field the ball cleanly," he says. "But at third you can knock it down and still have time to throw out

Proposed incomes show SIU-C ahead of budget

By David Galliani, II
Staff Writer

Projected athletics department income figures for fiscal year 1989 show Saluki athletics already surpassing their projected income with the final tally yet to come.

The figures, which were released by athletics director Jim Hart at the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee Tuesday, projected Saluki athletics $11,597 over their actual 1989 budget.

Budgeting a total of $3,451,655 for 1989, the department's projected income stands at $3,563,252. Final tabulations should be done by late August or early September, said Regene Shand, administrative assistant to the athletics department.

The projected income released is a combination of the men's and women's athletics programs. Hart said the two are usually figured separately, but the consolidation was done at the request of University President John C. Guyon.

Out of 14 items on the budget, six showed a profit and eight were on the losing side. Student fees had the largest profit-margin, a projected $1,500,000 compared to the $1,480,000 budgeted.

Ticket sales have produced $129,169 over the budgeted amount of $320,000. The department's report projects ticket sales at $449,169. Shand said about $100,000 of the profits are from basketball.

Conference share showed the biggest deficit, $10,000. SIU-C projected a $20,000 income compared to $30,000 budgeted.

Shand said the difference in the conference figure was because of the number of Missouri Valley teams in the NCAA Tournament this season.

In fiscal year 1988, Saluki athletics made $65,392 from conference share, and two MVC teams, Bradley and Wichita State, played in the NCAA tournament. SIU-C budgeted $30,000 for conference share in 1989.

This season, only one MVC team, Creighton, made it to the NCAA's.

Also figured into conference share is television revenue. Charlotte West, associate athletics director, said SIU-C's receipts from television are not substantial.

"A lot of conferences pay for production costs to get on TV because it is a big recruiter," West said. "It is not as big a money maker."

Shand said SIU-C's share from their NIT appearance had not been figured into conference share, but Hart said it would only add an extra "couple thousand."

The IAAC examined proposed athletics ticket prices for the 1989-90 year, which show little change over past admission costs.

The proposals showed only five changes in the various selection of tickets to Saluki athletics events.

The biggest change is an across the board increase on admission to baseball games at Abe Martin Field.

Adult tickets will go from $3 to $4, high school and under
